The commercial artist, Jack E. Johnson, died of brain injuries at 7:55 a.m. in St. Vincent Charity Hospital, 45 minutes after his car struck a Cleveland Transit System cement pole at 2301 Euclid.

Johnson had left his parents' home at 988 Elbon Road, Cleveland Heights, to attend midnight mass at St. Aloysius' Catholic Church.

After he attended a party with former classmates at the Cleveland Institute of Art at a home on the West Side. He was on his way to his parents' home when the accident occurred. Police said he apparently fell asleep at the wheel.

Johnson, a June graduate of the Cleveland Institute of Art, was assistant art director for the advertising firm of Ketchum, McCleod & Grove in Pittsburgh. He was a graduate of Cathedral Latin School. Johnson is survived by his father John F., manager of the Brooks Market in Cleveland Heights; his mother, Helen, and a brother, James, 16.

Services will be held in Christ the King Catholic Church, 1862 Noble Road, East Cleveland, at 11 a.m. Saturday. Friends may call at the Monreal funeral home, 15144 Euclid Avenue, East Cleveland.
